

My name is Sheila Sinclair and I am a forever pet lover. I have spent the majority of my life rescuing and writing about animals. I am a retired piano tuner for the Kansas City school district, a harpist, a writer and an artist. In my life I have played the harp for Joe Montana and tuned pianos in Scott Joplin's museum. You might recognize me from playing my electric harp at Barnes and Noble on the plaza during Christmas season. I frequent the Writers Place and have been working on a book I plan to publish titled "When Animals Pray To God." Attached are a few of my poems, from my book, that I would like to share.

With Anticipation,

Sheila Sinclair
